Guided by Our Values

SUPPORTING OUR STUDENTS THROUGH COVID-19

In March 2020, the Blind Children’s Center transitioned to remote services for our students and families. This decision was based on recommendations from the Center for Disease Control and LA County Public Health Department in light of the COVID-19 pandemic and was in alignment with the Los Angeles Unified School District and other surrounding districts. Our goal was to secure the health and safety of our children and families as well as our staff while continuing to support our students’ growth.

During this challenging period, it has been our continued priority to provide services for our families that focus on four pillars of growth: physical health, opportunities for our students to interact with the adults in their lives, family self-care, and affirmations that promote hope, positivity, and a healthy frame of mind.

Our team created customized at-home education plans for each of our students based on these goals and students’ specific needs. At the same time, parents were coached on their role as their child’s first and most important teacher. Educational “care packages” were sent to each child’s home to ensure they had access to the necessary materials to support their learning. For our braille reading students, we mailed brailleers and braille paper to homes and set up Zoom classes for students that included educational activities, physical fitness and time for sharing and connecting with friends.

FROM OUR LEADERSHIP

As 2020 has unfolded, we have all been asked to step up in new ways: to achieve more through technology; to take collective responsibility for the vulnerable among us; and for many parents, to be parent, teacher, employee, spouse and caregiver all at the same time. These stressors are compounded for parents with children who have special needs.

That is why Blind Children’s Center focused first on our values when we moved our programs off-site in March 2020. Guided by our values (see page 5) of Family Focus, Empathy, Empowerment, Inclusion and Professionalism, BCC’s staff designed a virtual program model to respond to the unique needs of each child and their families. Working through our strong relationships with families, teachers and specialists individualized their approach, guiding children in developmentally appropriate activities at home.

Our values will continue to guide us through 2021 as the uncertainties caused by the global pandemic will undoubtedly continue to negatively impact children and their families – especially those with special needs. The Blind Children’s Center is prepared to do our part by focusing not just on children, but the whole family; providing services with empathy; empowering children and parents with knowledge and tools for success and independence; and fostering acceptance through an unwavering commitment to inclusion.

With gratitude,

Sarah E. Orth

Director of Education & Family Services
As we enter our 82nd school year, our priority remains the health and safety of our students, their families, and our staff. We begin the new year with an even greater understanding of distance learning and the knowledge that we will see our students in person as soon as it is safe for us all to be together again.

FROM OUR PRESIDENT JEFF LEITZINGER, PhD

It is often said nowadays that a consequence of the pandemic is that all of us have a new appreciation for what is important. Stripped of—or one might even say freed from—the all-consuming nature of our typically busy daily routines, we have had the chance to stop and think about what matters to us. Family, friends, work colleagues and schools all come to mind.

Certainly, that has been the case for all of us involved with the Blind Children’s Center. We have been thinking about the importance of the BCC’s work and how to continue our programs and services in this challenging environment. It has not been easy. Indeed, the substitutes for vision involve proximity—touch, voice, smell—the very things that the pandemic has forced us to limit.

But like the students we serve, we have adapted by learning new and valuable things about the way we can help the children and their families. Outreach to parents, assistance in tapping into online resources, and one-on-one counseling all have emerged as critical roles we play. Along the way, I have been energized by the creativity, flexibility, and commitment of the teachers and staff at the BCC.

We are reminded, as a result, about what has remained consistent throughout our 82 years of history—a community of caring people looking to help those who face unique challenges get along better in this world. Something worth preserving for generations to come.

Stay safe and healthy.

Jeffrey Leitzinger, PhD
Board President
INTRODUCING THE TOM SULLIVAN LEGACY SOCIETY

Named for one of our longstanding and dedicated supporters, the Tom Sullivan Legacy Society recognizes and honors those who have made, or intend to make, an estate-related gift to the Blind Children’s Center. When you include us in your estate plan, you leave a legacy of care, support, and light to children with visual impairments and their families.

WHO IS TOM?

Tom Sullivan was born blind due to complications from prematurity. Educated at Perkins School for the Blind, followed by Providence College and Harvard University, he has forged an incredible career in entertainment ranging from the Johnny Carson Show to a national anthem performance at the Super Bowl. Tom has leveraged his public profile to become a passionate advocate for children facing blindness and the teachers who open their hearts to help them learn and grow.

In 1979, Tom visited the Blind Children’s Center where he met a family whose daughter was just three months old. “It was the first time I held a blind baby, and it changed my life,” Tom remembered. “The Center’s child psychologist told me what great potential this little girl and every student had. Here was a baby who was just like I was years earlier. It had all come full circle.”

Tom became a champion for the Blind Children’s Center, impressed by the inclusive setting and inspired by the loving, caring environment. Over the past 40 years, he has worked tirelessly to raise funds in support of our mission, and in the future, his legacy will continue to support our work through his intended planned gift. We invite you to join him in supporting a future where children who are blind or visually impaired can thrive by designating a portion of your estate to the Blind Children’s Center.

WHY PLANNED GIVING?

Through thoughtful planned giving, you can increase your lifetime security and achieve your goals for family and charity through tax and estate planning advantages. At the same time, you will benefit from knowing that the Blind Children’s Center will continue to be a beacon of light for children facing blindness and their families. Benefits of membership in the Tom Sullivan Legacy Society include optional recognition on our donor wall and in printed materials, and invitations to special gatherings and events.

“It was the first time I held a blind baby, and it changed my life…”
— TOM SULLIVAN

While every member of our Legacy Society shares a dedication to our children and families, we recognize that each act of giving is personal and unique. When you are considering a significant gift, it is always advisable to weigh the costs and benefits of giving cash, securities, property, or business interests. Blind Children’s Center has the flexibility and resources to accept a wide range of assets. Additionally, Blind Children’s Center works with Bank of America Private Bank Philanthropic Solutions and can connect you with an expert who will share more about gift vehicles and their associated tax advantages, and work with you and your advisors on meeting your long-term financial and charitable goals.

To learn more, join, or be connected to an expert, please contact Scott Kassel, Director of Development, at (323) 664-2153 or scott@blindchildrenscenter.org.

The information provided here is not intended as tax, legal or financial advice, nor can we provide such advice to you. You should discuss any charitable gift with your professional financial advisor.
